

The Wire: *Urban Decay and American Television

Acknowledgements	vii
“I am the American Dream”: Modern Urban Tragedy and the Borders of Fiction C.W. Marshall and Tiffany Potter	1
Baltimore before The Wire Afaa M. Weaver	15
I. Baltimore and Its Institutions
1. Yesterday’s Tomorrow Today: Baltimore and the Promise of Reform David M. Alff	23
2. “We ain’t got no yard”: Crime, Development, and Urban Environment Peter Clandfield	37
3. Heroism, Institutions, and the Police Procedural Alasdair McMillan	50
4. The Narrative Production of “Real Police” Ryan Brooks	64
5. “I got the shotgun, you got the briefcase”: Lawyering and Ethics Lynne Viti	78
6. Posing Problems and Picking Fights: Critical Pedagogy and the Corner Boys Ralph Beliveau and Laura Bolf-Beliveau	91
II. On the Corner
7. Corner-Boy Masculinity: Intersections of Inner-City Manhood James Braxton Peterson	107
8. Stringer Bell’s Lament: Violence and Legitimacy in Contemporary Capitalism Jason Read	122
9. Networks of Affiliation: Familialism and Anticorporatism in Black and White Stephen Lucasi	135
10. Barksdale Women: Crime, Empire and the Production of Gender Courtney D. Marshall	149
11. After the Towers Fell: Bodie Broadus and the Space of Memory Elizabeth Bonjean	162
III. Twenty-first-Century Television
12. “The Dickensian Aspect”: Melodrama, Viewer Engagement, and the Socially-Conscious Text Amanda Ann Klein	177
13. It’s All Connected: Televisual Narrative Complexity Ted Nannicelli	190
14. Dislocating America: Agnieszka Holland Directs “Moral Midgetry” Kevin McNeilly	203
15. “Gots to get got”: Social Justice and Audience Response to Omar Little Kathleen LeBesco	217